Yes, a Kaiser Is Worse
The New Big Gun
Our Fools in Paris
How Did the Eye Start?
—By Arthur Brisbane—

Copyright, 1921.

The German Socialist newspaper "Freiheit" asks, of the Dempsey-Carpentier fight: "Can you conceive anything more ghastly and horrible than two brutalizing individuals, only zoologically members of the human race, beating each other until one is unconscious?"

Answer: "Yes. Entire nations, only distantly connected with common sense, murdering each other in millions with poison gas and dynamite, each thinking itself right, and each idolizing some fighting leader. That is worse."

The big prize fight is a disgrace. But it's a good deal safer to have ninety thousand fools cheering a Dempsey than seventy million fools, including German Socialists, following a Kaiser to their own destruction. At least Dempsey won, although he didn't deserve to.

Speaking of peace, civilization and such things, do you know of the new gun, sending a projectile with a speed up to five miles a second, able to shoot a five-ton shell more than two hundred miles? This invention, vouched for by competent men, "would make war too terrible and therefore impossible," says the inventors. But the last war proves that isn't so.

If the inventors have under perfect control the power they think they have, they should create wonderful industrial tools, for cutting off trees at the roots, quarrying stone, and otherwise making heavy labor lighter.

What would sunny, cheerful Paris do without the American fools?

The latest experience of the American ass in Paris is this: He leaves his respectable wife at the hotel, all tired out from taking what Depew calls "the Paris cure," and he goes to Montmartre, "to see life."

The young lady with the bobbed hair and the frequent zut dances with him, leaving her handbag, with money, on the table. Her true friend, fish of the mackerel family, takes her money as prearranged. She, with high shrieks, accuses the American of robbing her, and he, poor fool, speaking nothing but English, and through his nose at that, pays the price to avoid spending a night in jail and explaining to his wife.

Home again, he solemnly tells his fellow natives "they have no morality in France and know nothing about family life—I ought to know."

Austrian scientists have proved that you can transplant in a blind fish, frog or rat, a good eye from another animal, connect the nerves and restore sight.

The experiments recall the fact that fish and frogs, able to change body color to suit their surroundings, lose that power when blind. This indicates at least half-conscious will power involved in color adaptability.

The interesting question, one that puzzled Darwin to the last, is "How did the eye first start?"

You can explain the fish gill changing to the human ear, the fin to the bird's wing, the man's arm. But how did blind creatures of the earliest life develop eyes, and the complicated machinery of vision? Evolution, survival of the fittest, struggle for existence, adaptation to environment and all the other formulæ do not explain that any more than they could explain an electric fan or a kodak. In that the gloom may find comfort and ammunition.

Nicholas Alleinikoff left to his children "his ideals," including his belief that men should find happiness in working for the common good—forming an international brotherhood of man, wiping out racial, religious and color lines, etc.

Unfortunately, while it is easy to leave your ideals by will, as you leave your money, the money is usually accepted more eagerly than the ideals.

Certain things, health, usefulness, caution, intelligence, and ideals, each one must build up for himself. You cannot inherit them ready-made. Every baby starts with a certain mental inheritance upon which it must build. If it is unfortunate enough to inherit a fortune, it usually does little building, because spending is "a ...ss for itself."

...very father who knows well ... would have done little or ...g had he been born rich, is delighted to hang the millstone of money around his own son's neck.

Provide well for your daughters and their children. Make your sons provide for themselves, unless, as Thales said, "their are fools," in which case leave them your money to atone for the injury done by you in creating them fools.

The anti-prohibition ladies and gentlemen in New York State announce that they are going into politics and will support only "wets" true and tried. That is a good way to find out how many wets there are. The prohibitionists have long been in politics and most efficiently.

CONFERS WITH KING ON ERIN

Smuts Received by British Ruler; Reinforcements Sent to Ireland

Dublin, July 7.—Despite the peace negotiations and the prospect of an armistice, British troop reinforcements are continuously arriving in Ireland. Several thousand additional troops have arrived during the past twenty-four hours and are being distributed throughout "strategic areas."

A two-hour battle was fought between policemen and Republicans near Dundalk today. The Sinn Feiners fled upon the arrival of police reinforcements.

By International News Service.

London, July 7.—General Jan Smuts, Premier of South Africa, visited Dublin upon invitation from Eamon de Valera, it was revealed in the House of Commons by Premier Lloyd George this afternoon.

General Smuts was received in audience by the King at Buckingham Palace today.

The meeting gave rise to a report that General Smuts may have conveyed a request to the King to act as chairman at the proposed Irish peace conference.

In the face of the wave of optimism which has followed the new negotiations at Dublin, it was learned from an authoritative source that General Smuts considers Eamon de Valera's proposals unreasonable and impossible of acceptance, but hopes that a compromise is still possible.

General Smuts may not return to Dublin to attend the second conference of the Sinn Feiners and Unionists tomorrow. It had been reported

De Valera and Craig Obstacles to Peace

By International News Service.

London, July 7.—Official opinion this afternoon summed up the chief difficulties in the way of peace in Ireland as follows:

De Valera thinks if he meets Sir James Craig (Premier of Ulster) in London he will automatically recognize Ulster as a separate state.

On the other hand, Sir James Craig thinks that if he meets De Valera in Dublin he will give tacit recognition to the fact that the South of Ireland dominates the whole country.

52 HURT IN BUS ACCIDENT AT CONEY ISLAND

Driver and Passenger May Die; Women Suffer Shock and Hysterics

New York, July 7.—Fifty-two persons were injured—two of them perhaps fatally—when a sightseeing bus skidded and overturned early today near Coney Island. Twenty-seven women numbered among the passengers suffered shock and hysteria.

The accident occurred when the bus chauffeur, John Callahan, made a sharp turn to avoid collission with a touring car. The bus skidded twenty-five feet, hit an electric light pole and overturned, pinning Callahan and George Smith, a passenger, beneath it.

Firemen had barely extricated the two men from underneath the bus when the gasoline tank burst into flames, burning Callahan severely.

Both were taken to the Norwegian Hospital, where it was said Smith had sustained a fracture of the spine. He is not expected to live.

Callahan, who is suffering from internal injuries in addition to his burns, may not survive.

'KILL DAN,' PLEA TO 'SPOOKS'

Medium Testifies Accused Widow Sought Wealth of Slain Publisher

By International News Service.

Cleveland, O., July 7.—Mrs. Catherine Eva Kaber sought to encompass her husband's death to secure his wealth for her "college professor sweetheart," Mrs. Mary J. Wade, medium and fortune teller, declared on the witness stand today, testifying for the State in the trial of his widow, charged with the murder of Daniel Kaber, wealthy Cleveland publisher.

The professor was connected with Smith College, where Mrs. Kaber's daughter went to school," the medium declared.

"'Kill Dan Kaber,' she said to me," Mrs. Wade testified. "She wanted to use my psychic powers to kill Kaber; she said she loved the college professor and wanted him.

"She said: 'The professor is all brains and has no money. Dan Kaber has money and I want it for the professor. He has an insurance policy for $50,000 and if you kill him I will give you a big share of it.'"

The first and second husbands of Mrs. Kaber may meet at the trial.

Mrs. Wade declared Mrs. Kaber con

HURLBURT OBTAINS EVIDENCE

Gets Depositions of Two Movie Men and Mrs. Stearns in New York

New York, July 7.—Special Attorney-General Henry F. Hurlburt's hunt for affidavits in New York was successful.

He will return to Boston tonight with the depositions of three important witnesses in the Tufts case, the trial of which will start before the Supreme Court of Massachusetts Monday.

He got all the information he desired from the motion picture magnates relative to the alleged $105,000 conspiracy growing out of the all night party at Mishawum Manor, North Woburn.

After interrogating Hiram Abrams and Adolph Zukor under oath, Attorney Hurlburt decided it would be a waste of time to examine any of the six or eight others alleged to have attended "Brownie" Kennedy's revel.

He felt that the stories of the other film promoters would be merely cumulative and that the two depositions secured told all he wanted to know.

That much, Attorney Hurlburt today admitted to a Boston American reporter.

The depositions of the film magnates were taken at the office of Commissioner Raymond M. Lowe on Broadway. The motion picture men were represented by Rounds & Sherman.

The session lasted the greater part of a day. Attorney Hurlburt is reported to have gone into the minutest details in catechising the two witnesses.

Attorney Hurlburt left here today for Long Island to obtain the deposition of Mrs. Benjamin Sewall, former-

Caruso's "Voice of Gold" to Echo Again in U. S.

By International News Service.

Florence, Italy, July 7.—The golden notes of Enrico Caruso, world-famous tenor of the New York Metropolitan Opera Company, will again thrill American music lovers.

It was definitely established today that rumors circulated in New York that Signor Caruso had lost his voice as the result of illness and operations, were absolutely without foundation.

The songbird is living quietly in this beautiful Adriatic city and is recovering from the effects of his siege of illness in New York. Already he looks much better than he did upon his arrival in Italy.

The report of his voice failure, as cabled from Rome to New York, was shown the golden-voiced tenor. He seemed surprised and then smiled broadly. "Those rumors are absolutely without foundation," he said. "I am feeling splendid. Ah, see for yourself."

The singer broke off and laughed, his voice trilling into a tenor note worth $1,000 in any opera house. "Has it gone?" asked Caruso, gaily.

"I am here on vacation because I was weak after my sickness and my physicians and myself thought that it would be better for me to live here for a while, close to the sea and near enough to the mountains to get pure air. I am feeling splendid and I am enjoying my vacation very much. Please tell my friends in New York that I am all right."

Caruso's looks bore out his statement. He is taking on weight and has a fine bronze on his cheeks and his eyes are bright and snappy.

Fortune Tied Up, Says Girl Held for Theft

Anne Russling Is Acquitted by Judge Duff on Charge of Forging Check.

Miss Anne Russling, of Beacon street, Back Bay, who says an income and property left her by an uncle and her father will end her many troubles. She was held for the Grand Jury on the charge of stealing $150 from her former employers.

Declaring her acquittal by Judge Duff in Municipal Court on the charge of forging a check "speaks for itself" Miss Anne Russling, twenty-nine years old, of No. 823 Beacon street, Back Bay, when seen by an American reporter, refused to discuss further the charges of larceny involving the alleged theft of a $600 diamond ring from a Newbury street landlady and $150 from the Motors Corporation of New England, on which last charge she was held for the Grand Jury.

Judge Duff in the Municipal Court found her not guilty of forging a check for $75 in the name of the sales manager of the motor corporation and after adjudging her guilty of "maliciously destroying" six ledger books of the company, placed the case on file.

The hearing of the charge of stealing the diamond ring from Mrs. Ethel R. York, landlady of a Newberry street lodging house, was continued until Monday.

The pretty defendant, after being

'PHANTOM' LOOMS UP IN FOG

Crew of Munson Liner Have Weird Encounter on Trip From Boston

Seamen aboard the Munson liner Munalbro caused a sensation along the waterfront today when they told of an encounter with a mysterious pirate ship 100 miles southeast of New York.

The men believe the craft is the mystery ship responsible for the disappearance of more than twenty American ships since January 1. Ship's officers are lone outspokes, but Captain Giles was sufficiently impressed to make an official report of the matter to Washington.

The supposed "pirate ship" was sighted by the Munalbro early on the morning of June 30 as that vessel was on the way from Boston to Baltimore. The night was foggy and the mystery ship suddenly loomed up ahead, with only her range and masthead lights showing, traveling at 20 knots an hour.

WAS LOST IN FOG.

Suddenly somebody the vessel saw the Munalbro and she put out to sea and within a few minutes was lost in the fog.

The crew of the freighter have no doubt that the craft they encountered was a pirate ship.

The officers admit she may have been a naval scout, but Second Officer

IPSWICH CHIEF DISMISSED AS COURT OFFICER

Leavitt 'Fired' for Going 'Over Court's Head' in Auto Case, He Says

Edward Leavitt, chief of the Ipswich police force, has been dismissed as a court officer of the Third District Court by order of Judge Hayes, in charge of that tribunal.

Announcement to that effect was made today.

"Chief Leavitt has been discharged for the good of the service of the court," explained Judge Hayes today.

"His discharge had nothing to do with his action in the case of Lawrence P. Dodge, charged with speeding through heavy traffic and which I placed on file. I acted because of his general attitude.

"That is all I care to say, except that I do not intend to enter into a newspaper discussion with any police officer. The dignity of my position as head of this court would not permit that."

"Sure, Judge Hayes has fired me," said Chief Leavitt, when asked about the matter.

"He's full of spite because I went over his head to Highway Commissioner Goodwin and succeeded in having this man Dodge's license suspended until July 18, for one of the worst cases of speeding that has come under my attention for some time.

Judge Hayes was so raw in placing cases of this sort on file or imposing jokelines that I decided to act myself in this one. The hearing was held in Mr Goodwin's office last Thursday. Immediately afterward Judge Hayes wrote me asking my resignation. I ignored that letter and got another telling me that I had been fired.

"This does not affect my standing as chief of police and I shall continue pressing the campaign against violators of traffic regulations to the limit."

Dodge was accused of speeding at thirty-eight miles an hour through heavy traffic on a street in Ipswich June 17.

Daugherty to Pass on Peace Resolve

By International News Service.

Washington, July 7.—President Harding has sent the peace resolution which was signed last Saturday to the Attorney-General for an opinion as to its constitutionality, and as to the action which may be taken under its authority, it was announced at the Department of Justice today.

Attorney-General Daugherty said that while he had not yet rendered an opinion, he believed that the resolution was within the power of Congress.

HOUSING RELIEF IN NEW YORK REMOTE

New York, July 7.—A suspension of building that will make housing relief in New York a very remote thing, loomed today as a possible result of the dispute between the building trades unions and the employers over a wage cut of $1 per day, proposed by the employers. The 100,000 union men involved, according to their leaders, propose to stick to the present agreement, which has until January 1 to run.

BOY FINDS BOMB, LOSES BOTH EYES

Albert Paroiski, eleven years old, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Paroiski of No. 87 Sweetser street, Wakefield, lost the sight of both eyes today when a bomb exploded after he had touched a match to the fuse. Paroiski found the "dud" in the grass near Park street, and it is believed to have been mislaid during the fireworks display Fourth of July night.

Found Dead in Bed

Stanley Kantavisky twenty-eight years old, was found dead in bed at his home, No. 60 Medford street, Chelsea, today. His wife told police he was apparently in good health last night.

'PHANTOM SHIP' SIGHTED BY SEAMEN

Crew of Freighter Munalbro Startle Waterfront With Story of Pirate Vessel

Diamond said today he was very much impressed and Captain Giles confessed the incident was very unusual.

Customs men consider the strange tale of the Munalbro crew of sufficient importance to cause a searching investigation.

CAUSED SUSPICION.

They say that the fact that the "stranger" had no running lights was of itself enough to cause suspicion. Not to carry lights is a flagrant violation of maritime law, which no skipper would countenance unless he had very good reasons. The action of the mystery ship in running off without hailing the Munson line freighter is also considered significant.

The encounter was given particular importance in Washington today as a conference of government officials probing the disappearance of other ships is under way there.

All officials were agreed that the ships which have vanished were not sunk "from natural causes."

Captains of coastwise vessels may be asked to keep their eyes open for strange wanderers on the steamship lanes and ultimately the report of the Munalbro crew may result in clearing the seas of the lurking menace to ships and men.

Central Figures in Pepperell Tarring Case

TARRED SUITOR TO PROTECT SISTER

Pepperell Man Declares Girl Was Hypnotized by Chauffeur Victim

North Pepperell, July 7.—"We took the law into our own hands to save no silly little sister from this Don Juan, England."

That is the explanation given by Roger S. Robbins, former captain in the army and assistant superintendent of the Champion-International Paper Company of Lawrence, for the part he and his brother played in the tarring and feathering of England last Monday night.

"This man Percy England is without conscience where women are concerned," he said. "We have told Katherine that. We have shown her disparing, heart-broken letters from the man's deserted wife in England; letters imploring him to return to his wife and his children.

"We have also showed her the man's record here. But she won't believe us. She is hypnotized by the fellow.

"She is the only sister I have, and I could not see her get into trouble over a no-good like this. I appealed to the police, to District Attorney Tufts and to others. I pointed out that England has violated the letter of his probation imposed when he pleaded guilty to a statutory charge together with an English girl named Bertha. I showed that the man has a dozen wives in the string.

TOOK LAW IN OWN HANDS.

"All that did not a bit of good. So when my brother, Grover C. Robbins, instructor in mathematics and science at the University of Pittsburgh, came home for his vacation we talked over the situation with Robert R. Meredith, a wealthy land owner and gentleman farmer who lives here. Then we decided to take the law into our own hands.

"We would not have beaten England up so badly if he had not struggled and bashed some of us. What we intended to do was to tar and feather him and run him out of town. It was all done for the sake of my sister and for the good name of our family. I don't regret a bit of it."

Chief of Police Charles W. Smith, formerly of Ayer and now of Hollis, N. H., has confirmed the statement of Robbins regarding the arrest and conviction of England on a statutory charge in 1918.

"Failure to send that man to jail was a woeful miscarriage of justice," declared Smith. "I have letters of the most appealing sort from his wife, imploring England to return to her and her children.

"She is with his people in Ascot, England, and not in New Zealand as he has claimed.

"The rector of the parish in which he lives, as well as his own family, have written me, denouncing the man as utterly worthless and an unmitigated rascal."

England is still bearing the marks of the beating and the tar and feathers rubbed into his hair and face on the night of July 4. He is anything but a handsome looking object today.

"DAY WILL COME."

"My day in court will come," he said thickly through his bruised and swollen lips.

"I can't understand the treatment I have received. My attentions to Miss Robbins have been perfectly honorable. I have always been honorable with other girls. This whole story is a lie cooked up to get me."

"Never have I disguised the fact that I am married. I have lived in this town nearly seven years. People know me and no one can say that I ever tried to slip anything over.

"I left my wife because I was sick of seeing her run around with other men. I don't know where she is now and I don't care."

England came here ten years ago and is employed as chauffeur by the Pepperell Card & Paper Company.

His three assailants pleaded not guilty when arraigned, and appealed from the sentence of three months in the House of Correction and $100 fine each, imposed in the local court.

The girl today stubbornly stuck by her assertion that she would never forgive her brothers for their treatment of England.

SACCO ATTACKS HARVARD IN TETIMONY

Defendant in Murder Trial Delivers Harangue on Social Injustice

Nicola Sacco, on trial for his life in Dedham in connection with the South Braintree robbery and murder, delivered a harangue against social injustice in the United States today, in explaining why he was a radical.

"I had to work here harder than I did in Italy," testified the defendant, excitedly.

"This country was not what I thought it would be. I had better food in Italy.

SOCIALISTS PUT IN JAIL.

"I found that Socialists were put in jail by the capitalistic classes; that the effort was to keep the workers meek and lowly.

"Morgan and Rockefeller give money to Harvard, but a poor man cannot get into Harvard. He is not able to live on what he gets."

Sacco's diatribe was called forth by way of explanation of why he did not remain in Mexico when he fled there to avoid the draft.

He said the United States was a better place to make money than Mexico, but social injustices were money.

Sacco was cross-examined by District Attorney Katzmann, after occasion to inform him that poor men's sons could and did graduatt from Harvard.

ADMITS BEING SLACKER.

He admitted being a slacker during the World War and said that he went to Mexico to avoid conscription.

Q—Did you say that you came to America because you loved a free country? A—Yes.

Q—Did you love the United States of America in May 1917? A—I won't say that I loved this country.

Q—Please answer my question directly. Did you love this country in May, 1917? A—I can't say in one word.

Q—Please answer my question, Mr. Sacco (in thundering voice). One week before the day of the first draft in May, 1917, did you love this country? A—I can't say in one word. I would like to explain.

Katzmann continued to hurl questions at Sacco.

Q—Did you love this country in May, 1917?

Attorney Moore rose to his feet and objected, but Judge Thayer said the question was a proper one and could be answered "yes" or "no," and that if the defence attorneys desired to have the defendant explain he could do so later.

A—It is pretty hard for me to say in one word.

Q—There are two words you can use—"yes" or "no," which is it? A—After hesitating a long time Sacco replied "Yes."

Q—And it was your idea of loving America to go to Mexico in May, 1917? A—Yes, sir.

Q—And you went there under an assumed name? A—No.

Q—Didn't you go under the name Mosca? Mosca when you went away? A—Yes.

STILL LOVES AMERICA.

Q—When you returned in August, 1917, you became known as Sacco again? A—Yes.

Q—And you still loved America when you came back? A—Yes.

Q—Is it your idea of loving a country to run away from it when it needs you? A—Yes.

Q—Would it be your idea of loving your wife to run away from her when she needed you? A—Yes.

Counsel objected on the ground that Sacco had not said he "ran" away to Mexico.

Q—Well did you run away to Mexico? A—I didn't run away.

Q—You walked away? A—Yes.

FEARED DEPORTATION.

Q—Were you afraid of deportation on May 5? A—Yes.

Q—Were you familiar with the views of your friend Fruzzetti of Bridgewater with respect to anarchistic opinions?

Q—Were your views the same as his? A—I could not see as far as Fruzzetti. He was an intelligent man.

Q—Do you know why Fruzzetti was deported? A—Yes.

Q—Wasn't it because he held anarchistic opinions? A—Yes.

Q—Was Ferrucci deported out of West Bridgewater deported? A—Yes.

Q—The books you wanted to hide were anarchistic, were they? A—Some of them, and I had some books on astronomy.

Q—Did you take this revolver from the pocket of Alessandro Berardelli as he lay wounded in front of Nice & Hutchins shoe factory? A—No.

Q—Do you mean that? A—Yes.

Q—When did you first know who Berardelli was? A—On the 16th of 17th of April.

Q—And on May 5 at the Brockton police station didn't I ask you if you knew Alessandro Berardelli, and didn't you say "No; who is this Berardelli?" A—I don't remember.

Q—Was there any anarchism in Mexico? A—Because the United States was a better place to make money.

In response to a question by the district attorney Sacco made a long, rambling explanation of why he changed his opinions regarding this United States. He said:

MORGAN AND ROCKEFELLER

"When I was a boy I thought I would have a chance in a republic. I hoped to build a family and give my children a good education. When I came to this country I saw that it was not as I thought it was. I had to work in Italy, but I worked harder here. I had better food in Italy. In Italy the laborers had more fresh vegetables. I found when I came here that men were put in jail because they were Socialists. They were put in jail to help the capitalistic class who don't want our children to go to high school or college.

"They want the laboring class low and humble so they can put their feet on their heads. See Rockefeller and Morgan. They give $500,000 to Harvard College and $1,000,000 to another college. Who goes to Harvard College? The poor man has no chance to go to Harvard College. He is not able to live on what he gets. If he wants to eat like a cow that's different, but he can't live like a man."

Q—And are those the reasons why you loved this country? A—I am telling you what I think.

KILLS WIFE AND ENDS HIS OWN LIFE

Springfield, July 7.—When his wife refused to speak to him in spite of his earnest appeal for a reconciliation, James Richardson, thirty years old, whipped out a revolver and shot her three times. He then turned the gun on himself and fired a bullet into his brain. Both died on the way to the hospital.

The double tragedy occurred on Lebanon street as Mrs. Richardson was returning to Springfield Isolation Hospital with her sister, Mrs. Kemp, where both were employed as nurses.

Richardson and his wife were married April 9 last, after a rapid-fire wooing, and he was known to have been insanely jealous of his pretty bride.

ly Mrs. Charles Stearns of Waltham. Mrs. Sewall's husband called at the Hotel Biltmore and escorted him to their home.

Mrs. Sewall is looked upon by the Attorney-General's office as "a witness for the other side." Attorney-General Allen has charged that District Attorney Nathan A. Tufts conspired with others to obtain a divorce for Mrs. Sewall, better known as Stearns, by employing a young woman named Miss Pennington, formerly of Roxbury, to make his acquaintance while he was an officer in the army and to manufacture evidence.

WON'T APPEAR HERE.

Tufts, in his answer, admits that Mrs. Stearns consulted him about her divorce, but says he declined, to accept her case because he was District Attorney for Middlesex County. He also denies he took part in any conspiracy to wrong Stearns or to expedite the divorce.

Mrs. Sewall is understood to have served notice on Attorney-General Allen that she was prepared to make a full and frank statement of her part in the affair. The trip to and from her home and the preparation of her deposition is expected to take all day.

She and Abrams and Zukor will not personally appear as witnesses at the trial in Boston. Their depositions will be read into the evidence.

Since his arrival here Tuesday night Attorney Hurlburt has been continually on the jump. He seemed in high spirit when he started for Mrs. Sewall's home.

SOUTH SHORE MIDNIGHT REVELS DOOMED BY POLICE EDICT

PATROL OF RESORTS BEGUN

Lawless Crowd From Boston Nantasket's Bane, Says Chief Reynolds

The appointment of a score or more plain clothes officers to patrol at night the beach and lake resorts of the South Shore is the latest move in the drastic war being waged against midnight revelries.

The organization of this auxiliary police force follows the court edict that all persons arrested for disturbance in that section will be given jail sentences.

PAJAMA PARTIES DOOMED.

The South Shore is acting as a unit to stop the midnight "pajama parties" and nightly carousals which, the residents and Summer visitors claim, are carried on by members of Boston clubs.

From now on any person causing the slightest disturbance after dark in South Shore towns and resorts will be arrested.

The efforts to curb the lawlessness are so rigid that in Nantasket, according to Chief of Police Frank Reynolds, piano playing after 10 o'clock at night will be cause for investigation.

The members of the clubs which have given the most offence in Nantasket, Chief Reynolds says, are for the most part denizens of Boston's underworld.

They include pickpockets, gunmen, gamblers, dope fiends and automobile thieves, he declares.

"CROWD LAWLESS."

"These lawless men and women," Chief Reynolds says, "have been coming to Nantasket every week-end, and, as tenants of cottages, have invaded every section of the beach.

"Their drinking parties and carousals have continued throughout the day and night, making it impossible for anyone within hearing of their raucous voices to sleep."

Chief Reynolds blames some of the owners of cottages for the existing state of affairs.

"These owners," he says, "knowing the character of their tenants, have been in the habit of demanding and receiving rentals far in excess of the usual price."

EAST WEYMOUTH BAN.

At Lake View Park in East Weymouth the week-end parties became so obnoxious that the citizens called a special town meeting to decide what action to take against the revellers.

Residents tell stories of, midnight pajama sprees on the lake shore in which men and women in scanty attire take part. The women, they say, bathed in the flimsiest of lingerie while their men friends, often time drunk, engaged in the wildest of horse play.

Two plain clothes men have been detailed for duty on this lake, however, to eliminate any more similar parties.

The same conditions existed, residents of Hanson say, at Lake Monponsett in that town. Nine of the revellers, all Boston men, were arrested earlier in the week and fined $15 by Judge Pratt of Hingham, who warned them that future offenses of the same nature would be followed by jail sentences.

Now comes the "prettiest foot" contest.

It is open to girls all over New England and already more than 300 have enrolled.

The contest will be in Mechanics Building next week in connection with the National Shoe Style Show.

If you want to enter, report at the judges' office in Mechanics Building next Monday afternoon at 1 o'clock.

Miss Minna Mingo, attractive Royalston street maunikin, who won the title of "Boston's most attractive model" during a fashion show at the Copley-Plaza, will be one of the contestants, so it will be no light honor to win.

Chester I. Campbell, general manager of the style show, is in charge of the "prettiest foot" contest, which should make conducting an ordinary baby show seem tame and uninteresting.

Stewart Girl Tragedy Is Termed City's Shame

By HAZEL CANNING

One young woman, in this Boston of 1921, has settled her problems for all time.

She was fatherless, motherless, penniless. She had tramped the streets for months for work. She was discouraged—utterly. She was deserted—alone. A hand went out, grasping something cold and gleaming in the half light of the late afternoon.

A shot rang across the stillness.

Dorothy Stewart, only 21 years old, in great distress, had made her dread decision.

One of the city's tragedies had passed into history.

"One of the city's shames," says Rev. F. W. Cummings, pastor of Ruggles Street Church.

"That child's death seems to me an indictment against the church—that its hand doesn't stretch out more intimately in the personalness of real religion.

"This pitiful death is an accusation, most emphatic, against social agencies, which take down statistics, and give advice, while withholding themselves and their love.

"In society, of our city, are three helpful agencies which should always watch over girls like this. The three are the church, the woman's club and the newspaper.

ADVOCATES MOTHER TOUCH.

"Now I am an advocate of the older sister, loving mother touch, in all girl problems.

"At our church, Ruggles street, we have a function which we consider quite as important as Sunday preaching. It happens every Thursday night, when one of our devoted young women workers entertains, at supper, all the girls from a certain girls' boarding home.

"They are working girls, away from father and mother, all alone in a new city.

"They come to supper. They are entertained in informal fashion, of a real home. Our young woman talks with them, advising as an older sister might advise.

BRING PROBLEMS.

"They bring her their problems. They laugh and sing and talk. The cure flies away because it is brought out into the light and" dissipated when a helpful woman considers it, and teaches her young friend how to overcome it.

"What's the kind of institutions I'd like to see all over the city. Such a death is pitiful, because it was so unnecessary.

"There are social agencies; everywhere there are kindly folk, willing to help, by the dozen and scores, in our city. The fault lies in the organization, that it did not find the young girl out in time. But there's also another fault.

MESSAGE FOR GIRLS.

"That is with the girls themselves. So, I would like to send a message to each young woman, similarly distressed by hard times, and unemployment.

"Young woman—make your need known! There is no reason why one of you should suffer, if the right people knew. Tell your trouble, therefore, to the right person, avoid the man who would prey upon your defenselessness.

"Find out the good people. Get into right touch with society. Strengthen your heart and your courage. And help will come, for nobody knows how many good people there are in the world—till they just go out to find them."

Showing the latest styles at the Shoe Show next week will be this attractive model. Miss T. Mahoney of West Roxbury.

WOMAN THROWS SELF IN FRONT OF TRAIN

Mystery in Suicide Attempt at Attleboro Has Police Officials Puzzled

Attleboro, July 7.—Mrs. George Perkins, thirty-seven years old, of Spencer, tried to commit suicide here by plunging in front of a Providence-bound train at the South Main street railroad arch.

The woman was pulled from in front of the engine by William Fiorita, who had alighted from a passenger train on the opposite side of the station. The engine was less than five feet from her body.

Station Agent Joseph V. Curran turned the woman over to Patrolman John Bora, who took her to police headquarters.

Chief of Police Edmond H. Gingras learned that the woman has been employed as a domestic at the Massasoit House in Spencer, but had left there mysteriously last Monday.

Employes at the station say the woman arrived here from Providence and waited in the depot for four hours before making the attempt to end her life.

Mrs. Perkins gave no reason for her act, but stated that she had done something in Spencer which would prevent her going back.

Police of Spencer could give no cause for the woman's leaving that place.

STEWART GIRL SLAIN, SAYS SISTER

Esther Scouts Theory of Police That Dorothy Shot Herself at Plaza

Esther Stewart, nineteen-year-old sister of Dorothy Stewart, whose body was found in a room in the Hotel Plaza, a bullet in her brain and a revolver beside her, declares her sister was murdered by the man who left her an hour before the tragic death was discovered.

"Dorothy paid with her life for her betrayal by a married man," the young girl declares.

The man who registered with the girl at the Plaza as "W. P. Boyer and wife of Gloucester," has not yet been identified, although a police search has been made.

If he is found he will be grilled as to his friendship for the girl, who, according to her relatives and friends, had led an almost blameless life until she met this unidentified admirer.

"Boyer" is described as being about 25 or 27 years old, 5 feet 10 inches in height, 145 pounds in weight and of medium complexion. When he registered at the hotel he wore a light colored Palm Beach suit, straw hat and dark tan shoes.

The girl was buried yesterday afternoon in the Newton Cemetery. Her sister was the only mourner. After the burial the young sister declared she would give her life to expose the betrayer of her sister.

"I say with all conviction in my heart that Dorothy was murdered," Esther declared.

"She made a mistake; I cannot deny that. But she did not take her life to hide it. The man did that. For what reason I cannot say."

The police, however, do not put any faith in the murder theory. They still maintain that the girl killed herself. The strongest verification of this, they say, is the fact that the hotel room in which the girl was found was locked from the inside.

'JILTED' MALDEN SINGER ASKS 'JUSTICE'

Miss Maher, Suing Athlete for $20,000, Tells Story of Alleged Love Betrayal

Miss Mae Maher, Malden choir singer, today told the story of the shattered romance which led her to start a $20,000 breach of promise suit against John J. Butler, former football star.

Butler rejected a love which had been his since they were children together, according to Miss Maher.

He jilted her after he had helped her select her trousseau and after their friends were waiting for the announcement of their wedding day.

"My love was betrayed," said Miss Maher today. "I intend to show John Butler that I cannot be cast off so easily."

Butler, who captained football teams in Malden High School, Bates College and the Catholic University, courted Mae Maher since they were boy and girl together, according to her story.

ATTENTION TO ANOTHER.

He lited her, she says, to pay attention to Miss Mary Frances Murphy, instructor in Jordan High School in Lewiston, Me., where he also teaches. Miss Murphy is understood to be a daughter of a wealthy Dover, N. H., family.

Miss Maher continues:

"I am broken-hearted over the whole matter. It does not seem possible that my love has been in vain and that the man whom I loved and trusted has been unfaithful to me.

"I have been devoted to him, have helped him to secure his present position as athletic instructor at Jordan High School in Lewiston, Me., and all plans for my wedding were made. And then came his own confession to me, of his love for another woman, a teacher in Lewiston.

"John and I have been pals since we were fourteen years old. We lived in the same neighborhood, and grew up together. We became engaged two years ago, and I made all plans for an early wedding.

"I heard from him regularly until Christmas. Then the letters stopped. We met at a church on New Year's Eve. He admitted to me that there was another girl, one Frances Murphy, who taught in the same school. He said that her people were residents of Dover, N. H., and that she was very wealthy.

"It was a terrible blow to me. I loved him still and I never dreamed that he would be unfaithful. The knowledge of this other woman tortured me. I was left with my wedding plans all made, my bridal trousseau prepared. I was left to face the scorn and laughter of the neighbors who had known about our engagement. It was too cruel to bear.

"Why, John even went with me while I bought my trousseau, and helped me pick out my things. He loved me then; and I never dreamed that his love would grow cold.

"I am demanding $20,000. Money cannot heal a broken heart; but I believe that this compensation is due me in all justice."

TRIAL OF WOMEN AS SLAYERS OF JUDGE OPENS

Oklahoma Artist's Model and Nurse Confident of Acquittal; Claim Death an Accident

Tulsa, Okla., July 7.—Goldie Gordon, pretty artist's model, and Mrs. Myrl (Jessie) James, certified nurse, charged with the murder of Judge John Devereaux, aged Oklahoma jurist, maintained their supreme air of confidence as the State opened its case against them here.

When the trial of the two nurses, who cared for Judge Devereux for two weeks before his fatal injury in the rooms of Mrs. James, was continued, Dr. Ralph V. Smith, who directed the inquest, contradicted the women's stories of how Jurge Devereaux received his injuries.

GAVE HIM DRUGS.

They contend that the aged jurist had been sitting on a bed and fell, striking his head against a radiator. Mrs. James had wiped the blood from the radiator, it was claimed.

Dr. Smith, from the witness stand, said he examined the radiator minutely and found particles of dust on it and no evidence that it had been wiped off with a cloth.

The prosecution in opening the case said it would prove that the two women, although drawing immense wages, cruelly neglected the feeble jurist and had even given him powerful drugs to hasten his end.

"AUTED THE HOG."

It was charged that the women forced themselves upon Judge Devereux, moved him to a cheap lodging house and there while "acting the hog, killed the goose that laid the eggs." Whether or not the blow which caused the Judge's death, was accidental made no difference, the State contended in its argument, for the two women, under the guise of "angels of mercy" by their "foul machinations" contributed to his death.

The defence, it is said, will rely chiefly on a statement of Devereaux made before his death, in which it is claimed he exonerated the women from blame.

DIDN'T MEAN TO SHOOT SISTER, SOBS BOY

13-Year-Old Gerald Kennette Held for Death of Doris, Aged Eleven

Montgomery Centre, Vt., July 7.—"Yes, I shot Doris, but I didn't mean to hurt her."

In these words, according to the police, thirteen-year-old Gerald Kennette told of the killing of his eleven-year-old sister, whose body was found near her home several days ago.

None of the county officials who have questioned the boy has been able to shake the story he tells. His account is substantiated by his nine-year-old brother, Donald.

The body of Doris was discovered Sunday, and for a time it was believed she was the victim of some insane tramp. Then her brothers, who had disappeared, returned from the woods in which they had been hiding and told of the accidental shooting, of their fright when they found their sister was dead, and of their flight into the woods.

Gerald broke down sobbing when questioned by the State Attorney M. H. Alexander at the inquest, but stuck to his story that he had not meant to harm the girl.

They will be held in jail here pending the action of the Grand Jury or the decision of the State officers on their story.

FATHER ACCUSED BY HIS SON AT MURDER TRIAL

Heard Schutts and Leduc in Quarrel and Saw Fire Where Norman Brown Was Found

Hardman, Ore., July 7.—That the attorneys for Ernest Schutts, murderer and slayer-robber, who was arrested here before Justice Thomas Brim on a charge of murdering Norman Brown, a Portland boy, will make a desperate fight for the accused man was evidenced at the opening of the hearing.

Schutts has been in jail for weeks, charged with attempting to kill his wife, while Leduc and local officers have been investigating the circumstances surrounding the disappearance of Leduc's young son, who has been murdered, and perhaps buried to death, on a trip in the water.

The chief witness was Rudolph Schutts, seventeen-year-old son of Schutts, who faced his father in the court room and told the story of how he had heard his father and Leduc in a dispute over drink before the alleged murder.

Rudolph testified that he saw the body in the bed of Leduc's truck on the night of the murder, and that his father told him to "Transfer Bill" where later he found the body of Brown in the truck. A shotgun was found.

MYSTERY MAN IN FROM SEA ON PLANK

Speechless Stranger Startles Bathers at Long Beach; Writer Meaningly

New York, July 7.—A relief expedition was sent out from the Coast Guard station at Long Beach, L. I., in search of the mystery man who was found on a plank.

Floating in from the open sea, the man was discovered by Coast Guard Patrolman Jeff. As the patrol brought him ashore he was met by a crowd of bathers, who gathered around to see the excitement and questions as his identity and where he arrived at the beach, grade silently ashore, disappeared in the crowd of bathers and has not been seen since. Police and coast guards were not. Police and coast guards were notified and are searching the beach and the water.

Police Lieutenant Cornelius Brennan has asked the strange arrival be found, as he is anxious to question him in connection with the disappearance of Isadore Wendt and Alexander Rosenberg, two Brooklyn youths who disappeared from Long Beach on June 19.

Brennan said that he was told by the head of Leduc's camp that the boy, Wendt, had been seen with a man on the day of the disappearance. The man, he said, was described as a stranger who came to Long Beach from the city.

Mr. Hapgood said: "I am not talking about the decision in the efficiency of the but is grossly exaggerated and that the railroads are not entitled to the increase based upon reliable observations of the railroads' own figures. I am not a railroad expert, but I have been an actual interest in efficiency and economy in railroad operation for many years.

"I am sure my readers will fix that statement in their memories, as I shall watch the news from Washington in the days to come. I am willing to stand or fall by the statement. Congress and the public should not be misled by the railroads' claim that they are in urgent need of more money.

"PROTECTING THE PUBLIC.

"The railroad administration is all right, it is protecting the public, but the attitude of the railroads before the Interstate Commerce Commission is not. The railroads are so inflamed, from the standpoint of public interest, that they have so far studied to this to be managed entirely by railroad men who are managed entirely by railroad men and who are entitled to a fair return on their investment and to dividends for the stockholders, but the paying their whole attention to the railroad business and a large part of the railroad bonds are not allowed to hold railroad stock, and the railroads are not allowed to be owned. The railroads should be managed wherever supposed to the best interests of the public.

"LET US HAVE TRUTH.

"Let us have the truth, for instance, about steel and also a share of profits. Let us have the truth about the profits paid. Underutilization is another matter of importance. Before charging more let us be sure that the railroads are not responsible for excessive wages, for inefficiency during the war but they are not responsible for the fact that they are not getting enough money now. Why should the railroads be allowed to charge for $100,000 for records and sell them to take them away?

"AN HOUR IN BRITAIN.

"I have been in England back the middle of March and have been trying to get in personal touch to Mr. Hoover, the railroads and the public. I have had an hour in Britain with a man of very complex representation, whose point of view is that there is a fair and just equilibrium of employment and wages, and that the railroads are entitled to a fair return.

"Also rates are to be simplified and reasonable rates are to be based on the public.

"Also the earnings of the roads are to be established.

Moreover the government recommendations that the railroads be given that if they do not see for themselves the unjust attitude for the maintenance they will not get the money they are asking.

"The roads put in a claim for abnormal wages and load. The government asked them: 'How about the rents of the roads that have had their wages reduced?'

"Will any of the hard-estate activities be seen in the recommendations of the railroad administration? Will the railroads be allowed to charge for the

FIVE-MILE RIDE A NICKEL; TWO MILES A DIME

Somerville Citizens Protest Discrimination Shown by Elevated Officials

If a five-mile ride only costs 5 cents in one section of Somerville, why should it cost 10 cents for another neighborhood that is close? Or, if a 2-mile ride costs 10 cents, why should a 5-mile ride cost 20 cents? Somerville, representing residents of the Winter Hill district, wants to know why these square-deal points, wants to know.

PUBLIC PROTEST LIKELY.

As a breeding in short public meetings and things unless the Elevated officials provide an answer pretty soon.

Lieutenant-Governor Alvan T. Fuller is interested, and other officials are trying to find out what it is all about, according to Mr. Higginbotham.

"The fare from Sullivan square to Dudley street is 10 cents," he says, "but from Sullivan square to Somerville it is five cents," he says.

"The fare from Sullivan square to Somerville is 10 cents," he says. "The fare from Sullivan square to Somerville is five cents," he says.

"The worst of it is that poor people are the ones affected. The people in the packing house district are affected, as are those living in the lower Somerville avenue. So are those in Union and Davis squares.

"We think it is about time something was done about this matter, and we don't propose wasting much time."

Lieutenant-Governor Fuller has been induced to listen to our grievances," said Mr. Higginbotham. We expect to hear from other officials and from the Elevated officials as soon as there is anything to report of interest.

RESCUES DROWNING MAN WITH LARIAT

The cowboy spirit that prevails in Texas was shown in Dallas when Sheriff Bill Decker, 45 years old, threw a lariat around a drowning in the harbor off India wharf, Boston, and dragged him ashore. Decker was on a visit to Boston and in throwing a lariat over the head of the drowning man, he pulled him ashore, where he collapsed. He was revived by Dr. Harry Stelling of the police boat Watchorn.

ASKS GOVERNORS TO PROTEST OIL TAX

Governor Cox has sent the following message to the Governors of New England:

"The proposed tariff which seeks to place a duty of 25 cents a barrel on crude oil and 25 cents a barrel on fuel oil, would, in my judgment, be a serious blow to New England industries, a large number of which are today consuming oil. I fear also that it would be a serious injury to the several new oil refineries recently built in New England, and that it would tend to raise the price of coal in New England and increase the price of gasoline.

"I am expressing this view to the members of Congress from Massachusetts. If you feel the same, I hope you will address the members of Congress from your State, and urge their opposition to the proposed tariff."

BABE VICTIM OF AUTO NEAR DEATH

Newburyport, July 7.—Mary Hyrgan, five-year-old daughter of Patrolman and Mrs. John J. Horgan, who was run down by a machine driven by Charles Rowell of No. 32 Purchase street, is in a critical condition and little hope for her recovery is entertained.

Big Coal Users Plan to Lay in Supply

Washington, July 7.—Recommendations by the Interstate Commerce Commission that large users of coal lay in a reserve supply now brought promises of co-operation in this movement from the National Light Association, the National Committee of Gas and Electric Power and the Association of Railway Executives. The commission advised that large users build up a reserve at the present time, when production and transportation of coal is low in order to guard against shortage during the Winter.

MELLON WANTS ACTION DEFERRED

Washington, July 7.—Secretary of the Treasury Mellon in a letter to Senator Frelinghuysen of New Jersey, voiced his opposition to the proposed bonus for veterans of the World War, declaring that "the country is in no financial condition to shoulder further responsibilities."

"To pass the bonus bill," Mellon said, "would be to incur undetermined liability and to impose additional financial burdens upon the country."

He urged that action on the adjusted compensation bill be deferred, pointing out that the contemplated revision of the internal revenue laws was "already presenting difficulties to Congress."

PETER ABELARD, leader of the world's thought, was the idol of Paris early in the Twelfth century. At thirty-nine he had reached the highest academic position in Christendom, acclaimed by all countries as the scintillating master of dialectics, theology, politics—even of love and romance.

When the great bells of Notre Dame summoned his classes, five thousand flocked into his lecture hall—Parisian, Norman and Breton, Anglo-Saxon, Pole, German and pale-faced Southerner—sandalled monk, bronzed peasant and perfumed noble.

SUMMONS FOR ROXBURY OFFICER

Patteneaude Charged With Beating Charles J. Chambers of Dorchester

Alpheus Sanford, clerk of the Dorchester court, today announced he would issue a summons, returnable July 22, charging Patrolman Joseph P. Patteneaude of the Dudley street station with assault and battery on Charles J. Chambers, No. 7 Vaughan avenue, Dorchester, on the morning of July 4.

Hearing on the application for a warrant against the police officer was heard in Dorchester Court today. Attorney James E. O'Connell, representing Chambers, told the court that Patteneaude had arrested Chambers for alleged drunkenness, but that the prisoner had been speedily released by the probation officer at the station.

Chambers testified he had been beaten and kicked by the officer while being dragged to the station.

Patteneaude declared the man was drunk and had resisted arrest, compelling the use of sufficient force to get him to the station.

Brighton Officer Accused of Assault

Testimony that Patrolman Edward J. Nesky of the Brighton police department struck Patrick J. Collins of Newton several times and beat him over the head with his revolver was given by witnesses today in Brighton Court, where the patrolman was arraigned on a charge of assault and battery.

A charge of conduct unbecoming an officer, tried before a police board two weeks ago, was dismissed.

Collins, it was testified, was a passenger on a Newton-Brighton car, and, according to witnesses was thrown against the patrolman when the car lurched. Albert Carmell, a passenger, and Philip O'Hara, the conductor, testified that Collins started to apologize, but Nesky would not accept it and punched the passenger in the face.

Nesky then pulled Collins off the car, the two witnesses declared, and continued to punch and beat him, although he made no attempt to defend himself. Carmell said the policeman drew his gun and continued to wield it over Collins' head. He heard the trigger snap, he said, but the revolver was not discharged.

Dr. F. W. Rice, the police physician, testified that he treated Collins for several scalp wounds. He also stated that the man was under the influence of liquor. A charge of drunkenness against the complainant was dismissed.

Judge Connelly, evidently irritated by the reading of the minutes of Nesky's trial before a police board, stated that in future "such cases" would be tried in his court before they were tried anywhere else.

James J. Sullivan, motorman of the car on which defendant and complainant were riding, testified as to the beating. He said he asked the policeman to "go easy" and the latter called him a vile name and told him to get back on his car.

Others testified along the same line. None of them admitted that Collins interfered with the officer or gave him legitimate cause for his actions.

Heat Closes 8 Shops in Chicago

By International News Service.

Chicago, July 7.—Excessive heat today forced the closing of eight of the shops and foundries of the Crane Company, giving 5,000 workers an enforced vacation. J. B. Berryman, an official of the company, said it was impossible for the workmen to stand the superheated foundries.

One man, supposedly crazed with the heat, plunged to his death in Lake Michigan today and five others have died within the last twenty-four hours from causes attributed to the heat wave. Dozens of prostrations have occurred.

ONE OVERCOME AS HEAT WAVE HITS HUB

Little Relief From "Muggy" Spell Expected for Thirty-Six Hours

John Sanderson, eleven years old, of Bainbridge street, Roxbury, was overcome by the heat while playing on the Marcella street playground today. He was taken to the City Hospital for treatment.

Weatherman Smith holds out little hope for a relief from the "muggy" wave which struck Boston today. The sickliness of the weather, he declares, is not due so much to the temperature, but to the humidity, of which there was 76 per cent. at 11 o'clock.

At that time the thermometer stood at 80, although there was promise that it would go much higher before evening.

Persuing Boston will have to be content with the present sample of weather for at least another 36 hours. There should be some consolation, according to Mr. Smith, in the fact that Boston is much cooler today than the West and Middle West, where a heat wave is being experienced.

FOUR GIANT STILLS SEIZED IN WESTPORT

DEMAND BAN ON EAST BOSTON GARAGE

Fire Marshal Neal to View Premises After Protests by Residents

In response to the protests of a score of East Boston residents, State Fire Marshal George C. Neal today announced that he would make a personal inspection of the property at No. 1140 Saratoga street to determine whether the proposed construction of a garage, with a 500-gallon gasoline tank, would be a serious fire danger to the district.

The petition was granted to Joseph W. Bergin & Son by the City of Boston. A score of remonstrants appealed the decision to Fire Marshal Neal.

They asserted in their protest that the section is thickly settled, is a residential district, that there is no public necessity for another garage there and the residential district would be endangered.

Charles L. Hazelton, Mrs. Richard James, Gabriel Flaxer, Joseph A. Vence and other residents of Saratoga street were the remonstrants.

Dawes Cleans Out File Departments

By Universal Service.

Washington, July 7.—Charles G. Dawes has struck a fatal blow to what he termed the "root of bureaucracy." The director of the budget issued an order that all inactive files in every government department be placed in storage and the active files consolidated.

In many instances office files date back for half a century and are rarely, if ever, consulted. Meanwhile, they take up valuable office space and require the attention of numerous filing clerks. Their relegation to storage will release much space to be utilized for more essential purposes and, incidentally, cut quite a sum off the government payroll for unnecessary clerk hire.

The motion to agree to the conference report was made by Senator Poindexter, Republican, of Washington, chairman of the Senate Naval Affairs Committee.

In adopting the report the Senate instructed its conferees to consider the disputed amendments further with members of the House Naval Affairs Committee.

DISOWNED BRIDE GIVEN $100,000 INCOME

Mrs. Preston Gibson and Parents Reconciled, but Husband Still Banned

By Universal Service.

New York, July 7.—Reconciliation between Mrs. Preston Gibson and her parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Evarts Benjamin, resident in Paris, has been effected after years of estrangement, it was learned today.

It has been rumored that Mrs. Gibson's visit to Paris presaged a divorce between her husband and herself. Gibson, who is well known as a society man, a playwright, and an athlete, has been given the lie to all such rumors, characterizing them as "malicious falsehoods." To press representatives he showed cables and letters from his wife containing terms of endearment.

When Mrs. Gibson was married in October, 1919, her parents told her she was no longer their daughter and cut down her income from $80,000 to $20,000. The income she will receive hereafter is $100,000. Furthermore, her parents have agreed to take over the debts she and her husband have incurred.

George Hilliard Benjamin, her uncle, who lives in Madison, Ct., said today: "The family has no intention of interfering in her domestic affairs, but we still maintain our former attitude of disapproval of her husband. The administration of Mrs. Gibson's allowance will be effected by me as trustee and you can bet your sweet life he will not get a cent of it."

Mrs. Gibson has been married before, and her husband has divorced two wives.

CALLS BERGDOLL CASE A STAIN

Columbus, Ga., July 7.—The whole Bergdoll matter is a stain on the administration of the War Department and a reflection on this government, declared Thomas W. Miller, alien property custodian of the United States, in an address here before the convention of the Georgia Department of the American Legion. Miller was defending his recent action in seizing property of Grover C. Bergdoll, notorious slacker.

MAY LIMIT LOBBY PROBE TO DYES

Washington, July 7.—Limitation of the Senatorial investigation of the activities of lobbyists in connection with the emergency tariff bill, as provided for in the King resolution, is proposed in a substitute measure reported from the Senate Judiciary Committee by Senator Cummins of Iowa and Senator Sterling of South Dakota.

The substitute resolution would confine the investigation to the dye industry solely, which, it has been charged on the floor of the Senate, employed an expensive staff of attorneys and lobbyists to influence Congress to passing the dye embargo added as an amendment to the emergency tariff bill. A committee of five Senators is provided to make the investigation.

This Leaves the Arms Free From Hairy Growths

(Toilet Talks)

A simple method for completely removing every trace of hair or fuzz is here given. This is painless and usually a single treatment will banish even stubborn growths. To remove hairs, make a thick paste with some powdered delatone and water, spread on hairy surface and after about two minutes rub off, wash the skin and the hairs are gone. This method will not mar the skin, but to avoid disappointment, be certain you get delatone.—Advertisement.

IPSWICH SPEED CASE IS REHEARD

Registrar of Motor Vehicles Frank A. Goodwin gave a hearing on case of Lawrence P. Dodge of Newbury whose license was suspended until July 15, on complaint that he was driving thirty-eight miles an hour on a street in Ipswich on June 17.

Dodge originally appealed to the highway division which referred the case back to Registrar Goodwin. At the hearing the police and Dodge stuck to their original stories. Registrar Goodwin took the case under advisement and will report his findings to the highway division.

WARNED TO SHUN MARRIED WOMEN

Worcester, July 7.—Special Justice J. Otis Sibley warned Adam Domain, twenty-four years old, of No. 55 Prospect street, to keep away from married women in general and Mrs. John J. O'Rourke in particular when he placed on file a charge of disturbing the peace. He said he filed the case because he thought Domain had been punished enough by the beating given him by the woman's husband. O'Rourke caught Adam out walking with his wife. Domain says he did not know she was married.

NEW FISHING LAW RESTRICTS CATCH

Wall-eyed pike, horned pike and yellow perch are now protected by the game laws of Massachusetts.

Fishermen are forbidden to have in their possession more than 40 horned pike, 40 yellow perch or five wall-eyed pike.

The new law also establishes the minimum size of bass at nine inches instead of eight and pickerel at twelve inches instead of eight.

FUGITIVE

Charles Champney, sought in the dense woods near Wilder Village, New Hampshire, on a charge of trying to slay his wife.

East Jaffrey, N. H., July 7.—Charles Champney, wanted for the attempted murder of his wife, Mrs. Cora Champney, is still at large in the dense woods near Wilder Village. Berry pickers reported to Chief of Police Jere Mahoney that a strange man answering the description of Champney has been seen dodging into the bushes near an old mill.

In the belief that the man will be driven out of the woods by hunger and will make an attempt to board a train for Canada, all highways and railroad stations are being closely watched.

Champney is an experienced woodsman and police believe the task of attempting to locate him in the dense woods is hopeless.

McNAMARA WILL CASE SETTLED OUT OF COURT

Compromise Reached in Contest Over Estate of Former Police Official

A contest over the will of Jeremiah J. McNamara, who died on October 9, 1920, leaving an estate of $230,389.97, has been settled by a compromise.

McNamara, who many years ago was a sergeant in the Boston police department, resigned from the force and engaged in the liquor business. By the provisions of his will his sons, John J. and Thomas F. McNamara, were given the larger part of his property and also the residue.

He purposely made no provision for his daughter, Mary, the wife of Hubert B. Curley, nor for his grandson, John McNamara, the son of the latter and deceased son, William H. McNamara.

The two latter contested the will on the ground that McNamara was not of sound mind when he executed it. Judge Grant of the Probate Court certified issues for trial before a jury in the Superior Court, and just before the case was reached it was withdrawn from the list and a settlement effected.

The terms of the compromise have not been made public, but it is understood that the residuary legatees contributed a share which was satisfactory to Mrs. Curley and to John McNamara.

HEAVIEST MAN IN WORLD IS DEAD

Charles H. Jackson of Brockton Once Tipped the Scales at 630 Pounds

Brockton, July 7.—Charles H. Jackson, sixty-one years old, of No. 853 Crescent street, Brockton, who for many years was rated as the heaviest man in the world is dead at the Holy Ghost Hospital in Cambridge, where he had been undergoing treatment for the past four months.

Mr. Jackson in 1916 tipped the scales at 630 pounds and at that time did not have a known rival for heavyweight honors. He spent a number of seasons traveling with a circus company, but retired to private life late in 1918, and since that time has been practically an invalid at his home on Crescent street. He is survived by his widow, one son and three daughters. His son weighs but 180 pounds but each of the three daughters weigh close to 200 pounds.

Mr. Jackson lost considerable during the past few years, and last Winter was down to less than 400 pounds. At the time of his death he weighed but a trifle over 700 pounds.

The furniture at the Jackson home was especially constructed for him. Paul drivers invariably refused him as a fare and he was inconvenienced many times because of this. The funeral will be held Friday and burial will be in Medford.

DIPHTHERIA DEATH IN WALTHAM

Ida Shank, three-year-old daughter of Joseph Shank of No. 77 Central street, Waltham, is the fourth victim of diphtheria in that city in the past few days. While three others have died recently in the Watch City of the same disease, eleven cases in all having been reported, physicians declare the disease has not yet reached the epidemic stage. Two new cases have been reported in the past twenty-four hours.

Write the title on the "title" line below the picture. This is all you need to do. Every day the CORRECT Title CAN be found in the List of Titles. It will be there, always, although the List of Titles may be changed from day to day, shortened or lengthened, without notice.

Every day, a Test Picture; every day, a List of Titles containing the Correct Title.

New Englanders and Canadians may take part in this unique Test and share in the distribution of $6,000 in cash. The "work" consists of finding and writing Correct Titles. Write correct titles in sufficient numbers and one of the $1,000 awards is yours without asking.

ARTIST WILL DO BEST.

Remember, however, that you are taking part in a contest. You think, possibly, that you can find and write sixty Correct Titles. The artist declares that, while it can be done—as eventually he must prove—it isn't going to be done. He will do his best in certain days to lead you away from the Correct Title. Whether the "top" number of Correct Titles sent to us is 30, 40, 50, or only 10, the $20 awards will be paid to those who have them.

Although it appears to be like "giving everything away," the Test Editor cannot refrain from saying once more that the List of Titles is just as much a part of the Title Test as the Test Picture. Study the List of Titles. Be sure you understand it in every word in every title familiar to you? And its meaning? When you find a "perfect stranger," among these words, are you willing to investigate it?

Test Pictures must not be sent to this office before the end of the Test. With the appearance of Picture No. 60 the Test Editor will give the necessary directions about wrapping, address and posting parcels of Test Pictures.

TO PRINT BACK PICTURES.

On Wednesday and Thursday of next week all Back Pictures from No. 1 to No. 29, inclusive, will be printed. Hundreds of participants in the Test have lost a picture or two. Some have written to the Boston American asking for back numbers. Back numbers are not on sale at this office and cannot be obtained here. The one way to make sure of obtaining the Boston American regularly is to place a standing order for it with your newsdealer.

If you send in fewer than sixty pictures, remember, every missing picture will count against you as an "incorrect title." Speak to the newsdealer today. Do not fail to get the Boston American of next week, Wednesday and Thursday. Together, these two papers will place in your hands thirty-one of the sixty pictures which help to make up the Test. With the Back Pictures, of course, will be printed the titles which go with them.

VOLUME OF FREIGHT SHOWS DECREASE

Washington, July 7.—The number of cars loaded with revenue freight by the railroads of the United States decreased 5,600 during the week ending June 25, compared with the previous week, according to figures made public today by the American Railway Association. The total for the week was 775,061, which was a decrease of 136,442 compared with the corresponding week in 1920 and 76,623 below the total for the corresponding week in 1919. Comparisons show reductions in the loading of all commodities with the exception of

VOICE PROTEST OVER FARES TO NANTASKET

50-Cent Rate on Sundays Is Excessive, Legislators Tell Utilities Board

Vigorous protests against the fares charged by the Nantasket Beach Steamboat Company were registered before the Department of Public Utilities at the hearing on the petition of Representative Coleman E. Kelly of Dorchester asking for a reduction in rates charged on Sundays and holidays.

Speaking in favor of the petition were Representatives Kelly, Coleman, Gilbert, Roxbury; Francis X. Coyne, Dorchester; William J. Francis, Charlestown; William I. Hennessey, Dorchester; Stephen R. Mealey, Roxbury; Frank S. Atwood, Roxbury; William E. Lancaster, Roxbury, and Senator John P. Englert, Roxbury.

Contending that the 50-cent Sunday rate is excessive, the speakers declared that overhead expenses of the company were too high, adding that large sums are paid out in newspaper and billboard advertising which ought to go toward the reduction of rates.

It was contended that with the reduction in wages should come a paring down of rates.

President Charles B. Barnes, for the company, said it has been operating at a loss for the past four years, that dividends in part have been paid out of surplus, and that no provision has been made for depreciation charges.

The thirty-five-cent week-day rate was decided upon, he said, to increase week-day business and to prevent overcrowding on Sundays and holidays. As the business of the company is seasonal, he said, a flat rate of fare, if any were put into effect, would be nearer fifty than thirty-five cents.

ROBERT HILLIARD HITS "REAL SNAG"

New Bedford, July 7.—Robert Hilliard, the actor, is having trouble with his liquor supply again.

He tried to bring it from New York to Nantucket only to find that his removal permit had expired, so revenue officers took charge of it pending arrival of another permit.

Two seasons ago Hilliard's palatial "cottage" at Nantucket was entered and his "wet goods" stolen.

on Wednesday that General Smuts would be present at the meeting, but it was stated today that the South African statesman had "emphatically refused, in the belief that it would be useless."

The Daily Express said that the two main difficulties in the way of peace now are the following:

1—The Sinn Feiners are not ready to admit defeat and the republicans are not willing to "surrender what they have been fighting for";

2—Sir James Craig, Premier of Ulster, is not in a position to make dramatic concessions on behalf of his province.

"De Valera," said the Daily Express, "is still talking in terms of republicanism and Irish unity."

Twenty-five attacks were made upon crown forces in Ireland from ambush last week, but the casualties were slightly below those of the preceding week, it was announced by the Irish office today.

A police patrol was attacked at long range from ambush near Ballygar, County Galway, on Tuesday. There were no casualties.

On Wednesday several buildings were burned in the same district near the scene of the previous ambuscade.

SLAYERS 'WERE TO PUNISH, NOT KILL' KABER

Defence to Explain "Care With Which Wounds Were Inflicted" on Victim

fessed to her she still loved her first husband, Thomas McArdle of Chicago.

"I consulted the spirits and they said Mrs. Kaber would meet a gentleman on a journey," the witness added. "On her next visit Mrs. Kaber said she had met the gentleman I told her of."

The gentleman" was the alleged Smith College professor, according to the medium.

According to the witness, Mrs. Kaber first wanted her to secure aid from the "spirits" of Thomas McArdle, married for a second time and the father of four children. "She said McArdle was now wealthy and she loved him more than ever," the fortune teller testified.

Mrs. Kaber told her the mission of a medium was to build up and not to destroy, I said, 'Why, Mrs. Kaber, you wouldn't go into a medium's home and break up his family?'"

"SPOOKS" IN COURTROOM.

"Spooks" fluttered all over the courtroom during the testimony of the medium, a stocky, middle-aged aggressive woman, with a piping voice and a determined air.

Mrs. Bertha Mietzke then took the stand and testified the accused woman told her she wanted "to get rid of Dan Kaber regardless of how she did it."

Mrs. Mietzke is the grandmother of Patricia Mietzke, a little girl adopted by Mrs. Kaber and returned to her parents after Kaber's murder.

MAY AID DAUGHTER.

Husband No. 1, Thomas McArdle, formerly a bartender, now a wealthy business man of Chicago, who married the accused woman when she was sixteen years old, may aid the defence in saving his nineteen-year-old daughter, Marian, indicted with her mother.

Husband No. 2, David Frinkel, a Cleveland barber, who divorced the alleged slayer because she had a temper, may be summoned to aid the State in convicting her.

Search for the college professor, said to be a member of the faculty of Smith College, who, the State claims, soothed the disturbed minds of the "Stone Woman" by his wooing, revealed today that he masqueraded under the name of "Leo Stanley" while in Cleveland.

Another alleged friend" of the woman will feature in the trial—Frank de Carpo, who, according to the State, went to the beautiful Kaber home to court the nurse in attendance on Kaber and stayed to woo the mistress of the house with all the ardor of his race.

Evidence that S. Cala, now in jail, and Vittoria Pizalli, still at large, who Cala claims wielded the stiletto which stabbed Kaber to death, were members of a "Black Hand" gang, nation-wide in its operation, which hired out men to kill or wound at so much per job, is among the sensational features promised by the defence.

EXPLAIN KILLING ART.

The art of killing may be explained at length at the trial to support the defence's novel claim that the accused woman proved her intent was "to punish" her wealthy husband, not to murder him, by the fact that she hired experts who knew "how to strike and kill."

Pizalli went at the job with the art of a perfect craftsman and faithfully followed orders "not to kill," according to the defence.

"He was careful to use his stiletto only on those parts of Kaber's body where wounds would do the least harm, and with equal carefulness he inflicted no wound of more than 4½ inches.

"We will show exhaustion killed Kaber, not the wounds," says counsel for the defence.

The accused woman, instead of being an "arch murderess with the cunning of a Lucrezia Borgia," as the State describes her, is no older mentally than a girl of nine or ten, the defence claims. Experts will testify she is suffering from "Paretto brain" as a result of the treatment she received from Kaber.

SOUGHT TO SAVE SON.

"Grandmother" Brickel, the mother of Mrs. Kaber, also indicted for first degree murder, is seriously ill. The claim that the old woman signed a statement confessing complicity in Kaber's murder to save her son, was made today by her attorney, John J. Moore.

"The woman signed the statement only after she was told by the police that her much-beloved son had been arrested for Kaber's murder," said Moore. "She thought to save him and signed the statement."

There is a possibility that the aged woman may be granted immunity to testify for the State.

MILITARY HONORS PAID COPPINGER

His body, escorted by members of the V. D. Club and members of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, was carried on a gun caisson. The services were held at St. Columbkille's Church. The celebrant of the mass was Rev. Owen J. Kelly, S. J. The pallbearers included officers and men who served with Coppinger in France.

3 HELD ON LIQUOR VIOLATION CHARGES

William H. Merritt, proprietor of a saloon on Middlesex street, Lowell was arraigned in Federal court today on a charge of illegally selling liquor. His case was continued under $500 bonds, until July 15.

John O'Hearn or Main street, Charlestown, arraigned on a similar charge was held for the Grand Jury, as was Joseph Stenta of South street, Somerville.

Dedham Canoe House After $30,000 Fire

Ruins of the boathouse at Dedham after the blaze which razed the greater part of the building, destroying a hundred canoes.

Nearly 100 canoes were destroyed by a fire which partly demolished the boathouse owned by John Lent at Dedham today, causing damage estimated at $30,000.

Seven streams of water were poured on the wooden structure before the blaze was checked. While the fire was in progress young men attracted by the flames succeeded in rescuing fifty canoes from the building.

More than half of the building was burned to the ground, while the remainder is badly damaged.

All of the canoes are owned by private individuals.

The origin of the fire is a mystery, but police have started an investigation to determine the cause.

CAR EMPTIED BY MAN SWINGING SWORD-CANE

Motorman on Chestnut Hill Line Threatened by Truculent Passenger

A mysterious man armed with a sword-cane started a small riot in the Back Bay when he threatened to sheath the weapon in the stomach of an Elevated motorman.

Police have the name of the man with the sword. He probably will be haled into court.

Motorman Thomas Carnes, operating a Chestnut Hill-Ipswich line car, discovered the man with the sword.

He approached Carnes at the Audubon road stop in the Back Bay and declared he had been carried by his station.

Words were passed. Also abuse. Carnes alleges the man pressed a button and the cane he carried turned into a long blade of cold steel, which he announced he was going to bury in the motorman's body.

Carnes shouted to passengers to stop the man with the cane as that worthy tried to leave the car.

The car was stopped. The crowd followed the man, but at a respectful distance, as he swung the sword-cane in a swashbuckling manner.

EXPECT HARDING TO CUT TAXES A BILLION

Administration Leaders Believe Drastic Action Will Force Evaders to Pay Levies

By International News Service.

Washington, July 7.—Reduction in taxes by $1,000,000 within a year was predicted today by administration leaders on the basis of present programs for rigid governmental economies and measures to compel tax evaders to meet their liabilities.

President Harding after conference with Charles G. Dawes, director of the budget, Secretary of the Treasury Mellon and Internal Revenue Commissioner Blair is understood to have approved plans, which will mean a radical tightening up in governmental administration, not only with the object of stopping government leaks but of enforcing payment of huge tax levies by large concerns.

Since big corporations are enabled to merely give bonds as an evidence of their good faith to get out of paying taxes lawfully assessed, running in hundreds of cases from $10,000,000 to $50,000,000 each, and avoid by legal manoeuvring their payments to the government, there is sufficient reason for the wide gap between receipts and expenditures in the United States Treasury, officials said after a study of the situation.

The President and his Cabinet have now decided to put "the screws" on concerns which have sought every imaginable legal device to avoid payment of taxes.

Fresh From Paris

Paris, France

PARIS is lending itself whole heartedly to the pastime of the dance, and it is largely a matter of the hour what excuse one gives for the delightful pastime. Parties may be called luncheon at Armenonville, tea at the Ritz or dinner at the Chateau de Madrid but really dancing is the basic fact. Quite recently the French ingenue in taffeta frock at the soft fiddle-dee-dee was about the most in the style at tea time and in plain effect. And a ruffle edged collar, cuffs and cockade or flame colored crepe banded with the taffeta were pleasing touches of color. The Bouffant bag drapery promises to be exceedingly smart, as do the scallops that finish the skirt edge.

It was at Harry Pilcer's that the model at the right was seen, at dinner time. Pearl straps take the shoulder straps and run to the pleat at the front and back of the dress of this sprightly white taffeta frock, while silver bands the crepe and makes the spray of flowers at the front of the skirt. The three tiered skirt charmingly expresses the exuberance of the moment.

MITCHELL MEN OUT TO CLIMB

Cincinnati Reds Open First Series, With Cardinals and Pirates to Follow

By NICK FLATLEY.

Intensive baseball enthusiasm was rampant again, as you might say, when the battling Braves returned to the home pasture today. Boston is already for a winning ball club, and the Mitchmen have been so hilariously triumphant on the road that even the fans who have been in relentless pursuit for two or three years hid their voices other than any were preparing to welcome a real good fit.

The Braves have certainly harried the larklarians and [illegible] of [illegible] had been a bit [illegible] their efforts to [illegible] mind you [illegible] can't [illegible]

The Braves with their tremendous batting power have certainly a real chance in the [illegible] decided improved [illegible] clubs, excepting [illegible] Pirates.

The Phillies came back in their half of the opener, registering two counters on three hits. Pinckneon, the kid shortstop, singled over second after Bonckel, the fighting third sacker, had thrown out Smith. Williamson doubled and Meusel singled. Parkinson scoring and Wright stopping at third. Eddie Konetchy, batting for the first time in a Phillie uniform, smashed a single to left, scoring Wrightstone and putting the tail-enders ahead.

Strelsa, to Insure Her Peace of Mind Writes a Letter to Quarren

WHAT HAS HAPPENED.

Dick Quarren, society idler and spendthrift, but clever and good looking, has fallen desperately in love with Strelsa Leeds. She has had one unfortunate matrimonial experience, and since her advent into New York high society has admirers by the score. Quarren meets her first at a masked ball given by Molly Wyckerly, wins an hour out of her life on a wager and refrains from kissing her, as he tells her he is eager to do. He wins her interest, and obtains permission to call at her home. She tells him there can be nothing serious between them, but she asks him to always think well of her. She bids him good-by for two weeks. Upon her return she takes tea with Mrs. Sproul, who urges her to marry Sir Charles Mallison. She invites Quarren to dine with her alone. She tells him she is not the same woman she was when she went South. He kisses her and awakens her love. She refuses to see him for a month, and a letter he writes is unanswered. Then he meets her at a charity bazaar. Mrs. Sproul lectures him for dropping out of society. Quarren's bad business deals almost ruin him.

FINANCE AND BUSINESS

By B. C. Forbes

How is it with you? Is there any exaggeration for you in this?

When prosperity came the head of one large organization, after increasing his force of assistants so as to cope with the expanding business, began to take life very easy. Profits were rolling in faster than they had ever rolled in before. He saw several opportunities for making a "killing," and embarked upon the ventures. Then he left his lieutenants to do the work and to look after things in general. Everything was running so smoothly and profitably that he felt that he could afford to spend lots of time amusing himself.

When our whole national boom burst, several of his projects for making "billions" had not been completed. His main business was caught in the universal reaction. And things in general reached such a pass that he found it necessary to get back actively on the job. What he discovered gave him pain. While he had been enjoying himself his understudies, carried away by the artificial prosperity, had waded in wildly. They were quite agreeable to him so long as the results were favorable. But when he displayed his wonted attitude and began to blame and punish those who had followed policies in line with his optimistic, make-money-quickly idea.

To make a long story short, his whole attitude and action underwent complete transformation. He began a new cycle of activity and after lieutenant were pronounced unmercifully. One or two quit; others were dismissed. Terror of the boss gripped the whole organization.

This condition still continues. Whenever he approaches the office employes begin to low, become nervous. They tremblingly ask themselves, "What's coming next?"

* * *

Then the result is that the organization is not in a mental condition to function efficiently. All nerves are nerves. They now look upon the boss as a slave-driver. He has also taken to trying to catch them neglecting duties, as some of them express it, "he has become a spy." They fear him, but they neither love nor respect him. The people to whom he is now upon them the unfortunate fruits of his own shortcomings, his own inattention to business during the boom and his failure to familiarize himself with what was going on.

Meanwhile his losses have become more and more serious, and his conduct has become more and more demoralizing.

Knowledge of what has been happening in this organization has set me pondering which type of man is better boss, the man who rules with a rod of iron or the man who inspires loyalty by inspiring confidence and happiness and the affection of his people.

Candidly, I know several notably successful employers who are rude and still use stern methods, who make no effort whatsoever to win the love of either associates or clerks, who hold themselves rather aloof and never issue requests but always orders.

But I know a larger number of leaders who employ the other method. They make close friends of their responsible associates. They are democratic rather than autocratic in all their dealings with their workers. They ask their co-workers to do things, they don't command them to do them. They are sincerely anxious to be well liked. They feel that everyone identified with the business is working with them, not for them. They enjoy commending more than criticising. There is no employe, important or unimportant, to tremble at their approach. They have friendliness in their hearts, and they want their people to feel friendly towards them.

An associate of the late E. H. Harriman once remarked to him that he could accomplish a certain job just as effectively and much more pleasantly if he used kid gloves rather than a nailed fist. "You may be right," was probably Mr. Harriman replied. "But I can do things only in my own way." Perhaps there are lots of employers who can do things "only in their own way." Doubtless some of them are temperamentally autocratic, severe, domineering. Others are constructed differently.

The conclusion I have reached, however, is this: As the gap between employers and workers grows more and less, as the power of labor becomes greater as education increases, as democracy becomes more and more an actuality, the most successful employers in future will be those of the type that will not be afraid of an autocratic type. Loyalty hereafter will be won through love rather than through arrogance and severity. Workers will have to be inspired to exert their fullest effort, not coerced. The day of the tyrant, whether on the throne of a nation or on a capitalistic throne, is passing.

Is not this the doctrine which our many schools and colleges and classes and "courses" engaged in training young men for executives positions should instill to the coming generation? And is not this the path which all present day bosses should strive to enter and follow?

* * *

After all, there isn't much fun in being hated or feared by one's fellows. Is there?

MEXICAN PETE DOWN DURING MORNING

Steels Are Weak and Motors Sell Higher; Studebaker Is Strong and Active

By W. H. ROSS,
Financial Editor.

Stocks were irregular in New York at noon, but the market had a good undertone and the second hour trend was upward. Studebaker was especially strong, being up more than three points. Motors retained early strength, particularly Pierce Arrow and Chandler. Steels still showed losses, but had partly recovered. Oils were also higher on a somewhat higher ground. Sumatra was a strong tobacco. Mexican Petroleum stayed down all the morning, but got well above its lowest level. Trading was active, first hour transactions exceeding 250,000 shares.

Call money opened at 5½ per cent. Foreign exchange was steadier. Opening quotations were: Demand sterling, $3.74¾, cable, $3.75; francs, 9.15 demand, 9.17; cable, 9.20; marks, .0125, .0130; lires, .0480, .0482; marks, .0122½, .0130½.

The directors of the United States Rubber Company will meet for dividend action at 2 o'clock today.

MORE STOCK OFFERED.

Offerings were larger at the opening and while gains were the rule the list did not show an undue strength. Withdrawals were a factor and the market soon presented a fairly irregular appearance. Offerings mixed, with issues predominating somewhat at the end of an hour. Mexican Petroleum, Mexican Motors, Petroleum continued to command the most attention. It opened at more than 3 points decline and sold down more than three points. Pan-American sagged more than two points. Studebaker advanced more than 3 points on the morning, which showed clear strength. Steels ruled weak, with the public in the market and Crucible and Bethlehem B coming next in the decline. Leaders in the strong element were Lee, up two points, Rolls were steady and fluctuated but little. Sugars were quiet, but American Sugar Refining more than a point. Sears Roebuck was a strong specialty.

EXPECT MUCH AT CAPITAL.

Wall street is expecting some constructive developments at Washington. It is believed that the government will not only put a stop to further bond sales and that business requirements in general will be given the right of way. The Harding administration, it is thought, will put through Congress at the special session a tax program in marked contrast to the position maintained there by followers of the present administration. Relief for investment and tax reform is one of the things hoped for as a result of the Republican victory. Just how much can be done along that line during the short session of Congress and a New York dispatch, handling sentiment in the financial district, said two members of the Federal Reserve Board favor lower discount rates immediately.

TRADING DULL AND NARROW IN BOSTON

Many Issues Remain Unchanged All Morning; No Life on the Curb

The price movement on the Boston exchange was very narrow during the morning, about half of the issues to come selling being quoted unchanged. At the start most fluctuations were gains, but before noon this was reversed. The local market, in fact, reflected New York. Trading was as dull as before this week. American Telephone and its rights were comparatively active. Point or more losses were registered by Utah, Greenfield Tap & Die, Boston & Albany, Calumet & Hecla, Franklin Mining, Island Creek, United Fruit, American Sugar and Lake Superior Corporation. The last named issue quickly recovered part of its loss. American Woolen preferred opened with a two-point gain and American Investment soon advanced a point.

Small losses were shown by New Haven, Ventura and Swift. Substantial gains were old Dominion, United Shoe and Walworth. In the second hour the majority were still unchanged.

At the opening Curb trading was steady, with changes few. Later on and the market had no trend, although it looked a little heavy. The most active issue was Home Oil, followed by Products Co., Steel & Metals and Verde Mines. At the end of an hour Acme Coal was up at 1¾ and Boston & Montana, Seven Metals and Verde Mines 1 cent at 72 cents. Seven Metals was up at 1¾ and Verde Mines 3 cents at 17 cents.

U. S. Steel Unfilled Tonnage

The United States Steel Corporation will report as to unfilled orders on the books at the end of June on Saturday next and one estimate is that unfilled tonnage will be found to have decreased 466,000 tons the month. This would bring the total of unfilled orders down to 3,100,000 tons, the largest aggregate in two years. The high record of 12,183,853 tons was made on April 30, 1917, so that total at end of last month may show a decrease from that figure of more than 7,100,000 tons in four years.

Better Showing by Roads

Railroads are making a much better showing as to earnings in June than they were able to do a year ago. Their May net is expected to total $33,000,000. The net operating income for that month of 200 railroads was $37,482,000, against deficit of $4,286,000 in 1920. Between 20 and 30 roads have yet to report.

Chicago Grain Market

Chicago, July 7.—Wheat opened unchanged to up to ¼ higher. Lard was 5c lower; Wheat July 1.15¾; Sept. 1.09¾ to 1.10; Dec. 1.08¾. Corn, July 58¾; Sept. 59¼ to 59½; Dec. 59½ to 59¾. Lard, Sept. 10.05.

WORK ESSENTIAL TO STABILIZE WORLD

Peoples of All Nations Must Be Organized Into a "Trained Chorus" to Win Prosperity

By C. B. EVANS.

Chicago, July 7.—The man who goes thoroughly into the subject gets to a point where he declares "the world is a pauper' and wonders what it is going to do about itself.

Not that great profundity is necessary in a study of the subject. The evidence is on the surface. Mention any country in the world except the United States and you have made out a case, and even here we are not so flush as we would like to be.

Industrial conditions are less unpleasantly situated than others, as, for example, the Scandinavian countries, Holland and portions of South America.

But the cost of it is that there is no person or body of persons big enough financially to take over the derelicts, as many of our own banks have been being cared for by banker friends. It is a principle of business that there are no derelicts left by a bankrupt competitor, but when they are a bankrupt what are you going to do about it?

This is putting the case a little too strongly, but justification for such a summary is obvious to any well-informed person. There is too much length and breadth and too much thickness to economic affairs, and one evidence that the trouble is world-wide is found in the number of merchant vessels with their noses in the mud or their sides fastened to a wharf.

OPTIMISTIC TREND SEEN.

But we are getting some signs today of an easing of the situation and of the ability of portions of the world to pay their debts. Great Britain is taking up in advance of maturity November 1's indebtedness in the country bearing interest at 5½ per cent, the original amount of which was $150,000,000. Great Britain is still the biggest thing out of doors in the matter of meeting financial responsibilities.

We have right in the midst of our own financial whirlpool some signs of a turn toward the pecuniary stability. There is no question but more bought stocks today, which means, if true, that he considers that the bottom has been reached. It is fitting to remark in this connection that May 1921 was the end of a long succession of bear operators as on Cammack, Weerishoffer, Slayback, Keene and Pyne, and that the present round-up do not possess large fortunes, while men such as the Vanderlips and Ingersolls are coming back abnormally rich. We may conclude that it is better from a selfish viewpoint to create than to destroy or rather take advantage of creative processes rather than of destructive processes. This may be said in the face of the fact that many of our most prosperous industries have gone too far in building—such as the automobile and the railroads—and in due time we shall find that the world is after all a rather good place to live in.

The danger is the old one. Not to create but to seize is the idea still dominant among the nations of the earth. The war of 1914 is over, but there are many smaller conflicts now in progress and rumblings of many others. Japan and the United States smile at each other, but there is a certain artificiality in their pleasing grimaces. Japan negotiates with China with a dagger up her sleeve. Japan conciliates Korea with a sword. The Balkans, eastern and central Europe are in a state of nervous tension, and Greece thinks she wants Turkey.

Pauper though the world is, it may yet become prosperous, but we cannot afford any more belligerent performances such as that which has placed us in our present unfortunate condition.

NEAL REFUSES OIL TANKS IN SOUTH BOSTON

Upholds Street Commissioners in Denying License to Jenney Mfg. Co.

State Fire Marshal George C. Neal has confirmed the decision of the street commissioners of Boston in refusing a license to the Jenney Manufacturing Company permitting them to store 20,000 barrels of gasoline in two 500,000-gallon tanks opposite their present plant at East First and D streets, South Boston.

Notices that the license has been rejected were sent to the petitioner, Mgr. George J. Patterson, street commissioners and counsel for the petitioners.

Mgr. Patterson claimed the tanks would add to the fire dangers in the district which the authorities were attempting to eliminate. Representatives of the company claimed the fire risk had been reduced to a minimum.

MASSACRE OF CHRISTIANS BY TURKS

Mardin, in Asiatic Turkey, Scene of Slaughter, Constantinople Reports

London, July 7.—A massacre of Christians by Turks has occurred at Mardin in the vilayet of Diarbekel, Asiatic Turkey, according to official advices from Constantinople today. The Turks seized American missionary funds.

The foreign office announced that General Harrington, the British commander at Constantinople, had been authorized by the Allies to meet Mustapha Kemel Pasha, head of the Nationalist government, to transmit any proposals that he may care to make regarding peace.

:-: HAPPENINGS IN THE WORLD OF MOTION PICTURES :-:

By FRIEDA DAVIS.

"MASKS are succesful in dramatic work," Margaret Severn, the dancer who first brought the Benda masks to the stage, told me once, "because then they can be used to bring out psychological or characteristic traits."

"They will probably be perfected so that they can be made pliable, that the expressions can change," we remarked, confident that there was no artistic lengths to which the movies would not go eventually.

But she was a little skeptical about my hopefulness. She had not the same faith as I in the picture industry's future.

"Possibly," she admitted, "but not probably. The mask cannot fit the face exactly because character is as much the shape of the face and head as it is the features themselves. A pliable mask would need to fit the wearer's face to a certain extent and might then lose some of its individuality."

But Miss Severn didn't reckon with the makers of the movies. Alex Hall of Hollywood, Cal., has invented a mask that can be moved to change expression. Here are the first masks for ordinary pictures because, after all, it is the natural, everyday type that appeals to the fan. But they will be introduced advantageously into productions requiring symbolic and exaggerated types.

These were first used by Rex Ingram in "The Four Horsemen." The masks worn by War, Conquest, Pestilence and Death are artificial and mobile. D. W. Griffith first made use of the movable mask on the screen in "Dream Street." That worn by the street violinist was designed and carried out by W. T. Benda, the illustrator.

GUNNING FOR ATMOSPHERE.

BESSIE BARRISCALE has definitely broken her connections

with the screen world—but only temporarily, though she has reached New York to appear in a comedy. "The Skirt," written for her from one of her pictures by her husband, Howard Hickman.

Miss Barriscale spent several weeks on a ranch in the West to get atmosphere for "The Skirt." The story deals with a college girl who makes a wager that she can disguise as a man and "get away with it." When she came back from the ranch she carried lassos in the most approved Bill Hart manner. Friends asked, "What are those ropes for, Bessie?"

She replied sweetly, "Those are to catch steers with."

"How thrilling!" exclaimed the effete New Yorker, "and what do you use for bait?"

VERA GORDON STARS AGAIN.

AFTER a triumphal vaudeville tour and an all-too-short vacation, Vera Gordon, made famous by her portrayal of the mother in "Humoresque," will take up her grease paint and yellow powder to star in another Harry Rapf production. The title has not yet been announced. Rapf was the producer of "The Greatest Love," Miss Gordon's last film.

SPEAKING OF REVIVALS.

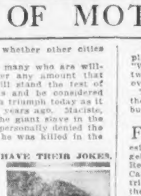
AND MANY producers are, these days, following on the successful example of "The Birth of a Nation" in New York. "Cabiria" has been taken off the shelf, dusted off, and is being shown in the movie theatres of New York. Its exception there will decide whether other cities will see it.

There are many who are willing to wager any amount that "Cabiria" will stand the test of modern films and be considered as much of a triumph today as it was several years ago. Maciste, who plays the giant slave in the production, personally denied the report that he was killed in the war.

THEY WILL HAVE THEIR JOKES.

THEY ARE telling it in Los Angeles now. Rodger Kosloff and his bride, formerly Natalie Talmadge, went to a ball game the other day. Along came little Shirley Mason, the Fox star. The only vacant seat was next to Keaton and she hopped up and took it.

"Hello, Shirley," Keaton replied. "What are wedding trips between friends?" and he leaned over and kissed her.



NATALIE TALMADGE

The grandstand turned to watch the bride hurl the thunderbolt, but Mrs. Keaton only smiled.

FILMING THE BIBLE.

FOUR reels of motion pictures illustrating the Book of Genesis have been filmed in Los Angeles under the guidance of the Rev. Dr. Harwood Huntington of California. These are being distributed and shown throughout the country to invitation audiences.

CONSTANCE TALMADGE HARD AT WORK

HAVING finished "Wedding Bells," adapted to the screen from the stage success by Salisbury Field, Constance Talmadge has plunged into the filming of an original John Emerson-Anita Loos story, "Good for Nothing," which will be directed by John Emerson. In the cast are Frank Lalor, George Fawcett, Nita Naldi, Theresa Maxwell-Conover, and Thomas Carr.

THE supporting cast in "Wedding Bells" includes Harrison Ford, Sally Rand, Ida Darling, William Rosher and Dallas Welford. The picture was being made at the same time that Miss Talmadge's own wedding bells were ringing.

CAMERA CLICKS.

ETHEL GRANDIN, who "came back" successfully in a George Baker production a few weeks ago, has been signed up for Mr. Baker's next special, to be filmed for the Metro Corporation.

MARY ANDERSON, who has just completed her role in the Morosco production, "The Half Breed," has bought a new car and is deep in preparations for a motor trip through the Yosemite Valley.

VIRGINIA FAIRE, who has scored a distinct success in the Kipling story, "Without Benefit of Clergy," in which she plays the role of the native girl, has been signed up to appear in the Richard Walton Tully play, "Omar the Tentmaker," to which our Rates Post will be starred.

HELEN JEROME EDDY takes her first excursion into light comedy in the next Rebe Daniels picture, "The March Hare." Miss Eddy has played more dramatic roles on the screen up to now, although her ambition has been to become a successful comedienne.

GLORIA SWANSON'S first starring production, the Elinor Glyn story, "The Great Moment," will not be released in July as formerly announced, but has been postponed until September.

Growing Menace of the Tenant Farmer

Thirty-eight Per Cent. of the 6,449,242 Farms Now Operated by Non-Owners

Copyright, 1921, Star Company

Senator Ladd of North Dakota holds his seat in the United States Senate by virtue of the support given him by the Non-Partisan League, and it was therefore to have been expected that his public utterances would be largely in advocacy of action beneficial to the farmers.

His address the other day to the graduating class of the Massachusetts Agricultural College was naturally devoted to problems of prime importance to the farming interest, but, as agriculture stands as a basic industry, whatever is of importance to its practitioners is vital to the prosperity of the nation as a whole.

The theme of Senator Ladd's discourse was largely the increase in the proportion of tenant farmers to the numbers of those who till their own land, and the peril that attends the disappearance of the land-owning farmer.

According to his figures, 38 per cent. of the 6,449,242 farms in the country are now operated by tenant farmers, and the numbers of this class are rapidly increasing.

The uncertainty of crops, the wasteful, unscientific and too often dishonest methods of marketing farm products, and, above all, the lack of suitable credit agencies for the farmer, that makes him the prey of profiteers and usurers, all combine to hasten this tendency toward the obliteration of the farmer proprietor.

To meet the menacing situation Senator Ladd insists that "the farmer must be fully organized to transact all lines of business which have to do with the marketing of farm products and the purchasing of farm needs. He must also become a banker in the real sense of the term, and control the funds which are needed by the farmers with which to transact their business."

A pretty large contract, one might say, but the Senator truly points out that "the Danish farmers control their butter, eggs and bacon, even in the markets of London and Liverpool."

No protest against commercial and financial conditions which tend to substitute for the independent farmer owning his own land a race of tenant farmers, often aliens, doing the bidding of non-resident landlords, can possibly be too strong.

Don't Admire Gorillas

And Don't Want to Be a Gorilla

Copyright, 1921, Star Company

It isn't a good idea to have 5,000,000 small boys and 10,000,000 adult fools looking up to Dempsey as THE magnificent type of American manhood. Hence, the emphatic statement that follows:

George Bernard Shaw was RIGHT. Carpentier is by several thousand per cent. the better man. And although fights settle nothing, Carpentier would have won that fight in the second round neatly if he hadn't broken his right hand.

The ex-ray photograph of his broken bones should be shown with the fight moving pictures.

You cannot hit hard with a broken hand buried in a soft glove. If Carpentier's hands had been heavily bandaged before the fight, as heavily as Dempsey's were bandaged, the fight would have ended in the second round with Mr. Dempsey knocked out.

Carpentier had the "punch" but not the hand to punch with. Any gentleman whose patriotism is offended by that statement is advised to get a better brand of patriotism in place of his present gorilla type. It's bad enough to be a gorilla, but it's worse to ADMIRE a gorilla, without even BEING one.

Flying Machine Timetables

They Have Them in Europe

Copyright, 1921, Star Company

When the first railroads were first built in this country you might read the announcement, "Train will leave at ABOUT 10 o'clock, weather permitting."

By and by came regular timetables. In Europe flying machine service has already reached the "regular timetable" stage. Flying cars leave and land on time. Machines leave Paris regularly at 12 and 12:45. One arriving at London at 3:15, the other at 3:45.

This country, which invented the flying machine, is more backward in flying than any one of half a dozen European nations. That's because we KNOW the government should keep out of private enterprises.

Our authorities should investigate the statement that the percentage of flying machine deaths is higher in the United States than anywhere else in the world.

And our government should be interested in the armored monoplane that England is building, in secret. England, of course, would tell her dear brothers across the sea all about it. She might sell us some.

What About the Unemployed

Answer That or Face Trouble

Copyright, 1921, Star Company

That President Harding has the fate of the unemployed in mind (Heaven knows, it is important) is shown in his latest message to Congress. Fifty thousand men who begged and implored to enlist in the army will suddenly be put out. And with them will be dismissed 20,000 civilian War Department employes. Mr. Harding says he may ask Congress to provide relief for these men and women suddenly put out of work by act of Congress and added to the country's 4,000,000 unemployed.

Unless Mr. Harding and Congress and the industrial intelligence of the country CAN provide work for the idle, trouble is coming in this country, and it will begin next Winter. Men will not starve peaceably in millions; you cannot expect it.

The country on roads, canals, unused land and in idle factories could easily absorb the labor of the idle. Philanthropic and self-protecting intelligence, a little less fear of the "paternalism" bugaboo, and perhaps a little so-called "fiat money" are necessary.

We shiver at the thought of fiat money, which would be simply the government's promise to pay, and therefore good money, "fiat" or not, up to fifty billions.

This country ought to be good for fifty times as much money as John D. Rockefeller could borrow. And he would issue notes rather than see his family starve.

Gompers to Blame for Poor Legal Status of Labor

Gompers denounces the recent attitude of our Massachusetts courts.

What he says is true. Organized labor and the interests of the workingmen have been set back in the last few years by our courts so rapidly that the gains by labor in the last twenty years have all been lost with respect to the legal status of organized labor. But whose fault is it? It is primarily the fault of Gompers himself, whose jealousy of power has led him to assume the responsibility for all the activities of organized labor with respect to legislation and the courts, and whose limited capacity made him unable to bear the responsibility.

Does Mr. Gompers pretend that organized labor in England is as helpless as organized labor in America? Is it as helpless in Germany? Is it as helpless in Italy? Is it as helpless in Poland and in the new States?

We are not sure that Mr. Gompers really does know the status of organized labor in these countries, but for the benefit of Mr. Gompers, if he does not, and of the rest of organized labor, we assure him that the workingmen in these countries have not lost, during or since the war, any of their gains made before the war. The legal status of the English workingmen is as solid as it ever was. The intelligence of the leaders of the British workmen, their progressiveness and vision, has enabled them to make organized labor a part of the British Constitution itself. The delegate which the British workmen sent to the American Federation of Labor Convention at Denver stated, when he reached this country, that organized labor in America is twenty-five years behind organized labor in Great Britain. Why? Who is at fault? Mr. Gompers has been chief of organized labor in this country for almost twice twenty-five years.

Mr. Gompers is fond of denouncing the courts and our Legislatures, but he is not fond of doing anything else but talking.

Springfield Gas. Co. Rapped

The Department of Public Utilities has given the Springfield Gas Light Company a sharp "rap on the wrist." The circumstances are these:

The lighting company had requested the right to maintain its charges for lighting, but the Department of Public Utilities reduced the charges, although by no means to the point which we should assume was a reasonable charge. But the Department of Public Utilities under the limitations which the Legislature deliberately imposes upon it, so that it may not be too effective a guardian of the public interest, cannot help the citizens of a municipality very much in these cases unless they try to help themselves by aiding the department by a thorough investigation of their company's condition.

However, the interest in the decision lies in the comment which the department made of the relations of the C. H. Tenney Company to the lighting company. The department says:

In other cases before the Board of Gas and Electric Light Commissioners this same relationship has been under review. The essential facts are that the C. H. Tenney Company furnishes accounting and similar services in the current operation of the Springfield company's business and also furnishes engineering services for a substantial part, if not all, of its construction work, for all of which the C. H. Tenney Company is liberally paid by the Springfield Company.

The principal officers of the latter company are substantially interested in the C. H. Tenney Company and share in the profits derived by the Tenney Company from the Springfield Company. We doubt that this relationship has been to the financial advantage of the Springfield Company, and wish to make it clear that we look with disfavor upon any arrangement, however plausible or innocent in its appearance, which may not leave the officers and agents of companies under our supervision free to serve solely the interests of their stockholders and the public supplied by their companies. No man can serve two masters. It has long been recognized that such companies are public agencies, and whatever the practices in ordinary business may be, the officers and agents of public service companies should be held to the same standards of conduct which are universally demanded of all public officials.

There ought not to be any different "practice in ordinary business."

There is scarcely a railroad in the country which has not suffered from this kind of inconsistent relationship on the part of those who control its management.

Sales Tax Economy

There is no sense in the United States Government spending $5,000,000,000 this year.

The government wouldn't dare to spend money that way if you plain folks united in a demand that all the waste and extravagance be stopped—and backed up your demand with a real threat to use your votes against every Congressman who failed to vote to cut down expenditures.

And that is exactly what you plain folks would do if you had any idea that most of this money was being taken from you—taken from your wages by being added to your cost of living.

Every time a majority in the Congress votes to spend another ten millions or another hundred millions, or another thousand millions, that means either less pay for you or higher prices for what you must buy.

In other words, YOU pay the taxes which the Congress spends so extravagantly—not Mr. Rockefeller or the Steel Trust or the big income chaps, but YOU, John Smith, and Henry Brown, and Richard Green, and the rest of you.

It's plain that you do not know that or you would make a row about it.

If this money was taken out of your pay envelope each week there would be no holding you. The howls you would set up would scare Washington into fits.

Now, if there was a universal sales tax on every single transaction, big or little, EVERYBODY would realize just what this abominable waste of public money meant to HIM, and there would be no more five billion dollar appropriations after this year.

The sales tax should be put on every sale of everything—on the sale of stocks, bonds, real estate, automobiles, machinery, fabrics, foodstuffs, furniture, drugs, jewelry, luxuries—everything, so as to spread it as thinly as possible over the individual sale, and so as to make every American acutely conscious of how much of his money his public servants are spending.

IN the fable the shepherd boy cried "Wolf, wolf!" when there was no wolf—just to see the people rush out to help. When the wolf really came, he made the same outcry, but the people didn't rush out; they thought he was joking. By his present indifference to the plight of our crippled veterans, to whom he promised so much when they were going into the late war, the shepherd boy of our dollar flock is putting his precious sheep to a serious hazard. If war should come again, who, among those he fooled once, would rush again to his rescue?

Results to Date of Prohibition

Here are two letters in answer to William Randolph Hearst's question, printed editorially in the Boston American of July 2, "What Has Prohibition Actually Accomplished to Date?" One hundred dollars will be paid for the best letter received.

People Demoralized

Editor Boston American:

If prohibition has accomplished one thing more than another, that thing is an increasing lack of appreciation of right and wrong, of law and order, upon the part of too great a number of our people. Worst of all, it seems to be destroying our sense of moral responsibility, so that we strive less and less, to develop, as the "lowly Nazarene" taught, that human beings, made in the likeness of God, should, but are developing the attitude of waiting until a law is made affecting some point of conduct, and then to live up to it if we must, or disregard it if we get the chance. Prohibition is, therefore, causing psychological demoralization of the people.

Families Reunited

Editor Boston American:

Prohibition has accomplished the following:

1. The control of men, who were unable to control themselves.
2. The reunion of families, disrupted by liquor.
3. A more civilized and law-abiding nation.
4. Removed one mark of heredity from childhood, for which a future generation will be thankful.

This much and more has prohibition accomplished to date. Perhaps not wholly successful, but neither Rome nor man's character was built in one day. It is commonly admitted that the most potent influence on earth today is the home. Thanks to prohibition, many men have returned to their homes and to their "God" today repentant. Returned to lives of peace and prosperity from the depths of despair. As a nation of common people, the privileged class, one ten-thousandth of our population, must not be considered. It will have its privileges under any conditions.

OUT A WINNER

"So you loved and lost, eh, old chap?"

"On the contrary, I came out a winner."

"How was that?"

"She returned my presents, and accidentally put in some of the other fellow's."

VERY YOUNG, INDEED

Mrs. Bacon—Is this young salad?

Bridget—Yes, ma'am, so young that I had to wash and dress it.

NICELY PAIRED

Young Bilkins: "I hope I'm not in the way, Miss Tompkyns!" Miss Tompkyns: "Why, Mr. Bilkins, how can you suggest such a thing! You know I believe in even numbers. Polly and Charlie are two; Jack and I make four; you and the poodle make six. We are all paired off nicely!"

The Ocean of Song

By Ella Wheeler Wilcox

IN a land beyond sight or conceiving,
In a land where no blight is, no wrong,
No darkness, no graves, and no grieving,
There lies the great Ocean of song.

And its waves—Oh! its waves unbeholden
By any save gods and their kind—
Are not blue, are not green, but are golden.
Like moonlight and sunlight combined.

It was whispered to me that their waters
Were made from the gathered-up tears
That were wept by the sons and the daughters
Of long vanished eras and spheres.

Like white sands of heaven the spray is
That falls all the happy day long.
And whoever it touches straightway is Made glad with the Spirit of Song.

For down along beautiful beaches,
By night and by glorious day,
The throng of the gifted ones reaches,
Their brows gleaming white with the spray,

And a few of the sons and the daughters
Of this Kingdom cloud hidden from sight
Go down in the wonderful waters
And bathe in those billows of light.

And their souls evermore are like fountains,
And liquid, and lucent, and strong,
High over the tops of the mountains
Gush up the sweet billows of Song.

No drought-time of waters can dry them,
Whoever has bathed in that sea,
All dangers, all deaths, they defy them—
And are gladder than gods are with glee.
